DRAWING ANIMALS ON YOUR HEAD

INSTRUCTIONS

This is a brilliant icebreaker activity that is perfect for starting a meeting, workshop, class, or just for something fun. This play-based activity is so much fun and is suitable for all ages. The reason it works so well is that I don't know anyone that practices drawing animals on top of their head.

To start this activity, all participants will need a piece of blank A4 paper and a pen or pencil. You then ask all participants to place their piece of paper on their head and give them 30 seconds or a minute to draw their favourite animal on their head. Once the time is up, everyone must stop drawing, and the group takes it in turn of guessing each participant's animal. The entire time that this activity is being played, the room will be filled with laughter and smiles, and it is hilarious trying to guess some of the animals that are drawn on people's heads. This game, like all of my games, is suitable for participants of all ages. It does, however, work best with adults I have found.
